

BRANCH OF NATIONAL COUNCIL OF WOMEN

Organized in Edmonton at Enthusiastic Meeting—Object of Council is to Secure Better Social and Political Conditions for Women Throughout the World—Edmonton Council to Entertain 2000 Delegates Next Summer.

A local branch of the National Council of Women was organized here on Saturday, the most enthusiastic interest being displayed in the work to about two hundred women of the city. Mrs. Ewing presided, Mrs. Haynes and Mrs. Edwards co-operating with her in the chair.

This is not the first time the National Council has been established in Edmonton. Lady Aberdeen, to whose energy the Canadian Council owes its origin, several years ago established an Edmonton branch during one of her visits to the west. The late Mrs. A. C. Taylor was president, but for very lack of work for the council interest in the problem of the eastern women of the province more directly in touch with their sister women throughout Canada. The time seemed ripe for the organization of the council upon a national basis.

The first work of the council here will be the entertainment next summer of the many continental delegates who meet at Toronto next June as members of the International Council of Women. After the convention in Ontario's capital, the delegates will go to the west in a special train, stopping at points of importance in route, and organization and social work will be done on the way.

As explained by the organizer on Saturday, Mrs. Edwards, or, indeed, each local branch, the council is made up of an elected executive and the presidents and delegates of all women's societies in the city affiliated with the National Council. Individuals may join the council on payment of a fee, but they can have no vote, as an individual vote would too strongly outweigh the vote of ten votes given a society composed of several members.

The National Council in Canada has not been in existence long, but Mrs. Edwards stated, having secured some needed reforms in the care of women prisoners, reform of the juvenile courts, women inspectors in factories employing women, in the home, and of working hours for women and children.

They also secured the election of a woman to the senate to protect the mother from the inequalities of Canadian women. There is still much to be done concerning child labor, the council also aims to secure the consent to be raised from sixteen to eighteen; they want more public interest taken in the housing of the poor.

Just for the solution of these problems the council sending delegates to the Dominion Convention must be able to state that the whole womanhood of the country is behind them in their work for women—women of all religions and racial descent. And they must have their arguments endorsed by acts authorized by each local council in whose territory these questions may arise.

There are some who may fancy this movement to be an organization in the cause of woman's suffrage. This is decidedly not so, Mrs. Edwards, as many prominent women in the council are strongly opposed to suffrage, while others favor it.

It is a matter of individual opinion. The aim and scope of the council is to influence legislation in the benefit of women and children for their protection and for the better education of children.

Mrs. Edwards made a strong plea for each woman in her audience to realize that this work is one with a call upon every intelligent woman. It makes less demand upon women's time than any other public work, the meetings taking place only occasionally, but it has a strong moral force in the community when called out to meet any special occasion that arises. She then urged each woman to feel an active interest in the work, not to shift the responsibility of her work upon her neighbor's shoulders, but to look into her own life, and, however busy it might be, to see if some matter of lesser importance could not be dropped.

Mrs. Ewing in a few graceful remarks expressed the appreciation of Edmonton women for Mrs. Edwards' interesting address. Several questions were then asked Mrs. Edwards, and the election of a temporary executive proceeded with.

At its customary with each branch of the council at a provincial capital, the honorary president is the wife of the lieutenant-governor. The other officers of the executive elected yesterday are provisional appointments, a couple of the officers stating that they could not in any case hold the office more than two or three months.

The executive now stands:

Hon. President ..... Mrs. Bulfinch.
President ..... Mrs. Saunders.
Vice-president ..... Mrs. Pettie.
Secretary ..... Mrs. Cautley.
Treasurer ..... Mrs. J. D. Hyndman.
The president of each local society affiliated is executive vice-president of the local Council and on the executive. Each society has one or more delegates also. Any organization or woman's society or any individual in the city who wishes to cooperate with the local Council is asked to communicate with the secretary, Mrs. Cautley, 2423 Seventh street (phone No. 222).

KAISER'S MEMOIRS STOLEN.

Berlin, March 1.—Some of the newspapers here are making a sensation of the mysterious disappearance of the manuscript of Kaiser's memoirs, which died lately. The document is alleged to contain intimate family and political information, the publication of which would seriously embarrass the Kaiser and other exalted personages, which Dr. Heinemann, in his will, directed should not be published for fifty years. The police are busily hunting for the supposed thief, who, it is suggested, tried to sell the manuscript to persons who could exploit it for their own purposes.

Appeal Not Sustained.
Winnipeg, Mar. 2.—An appeal from the decision of Judge Phippen in the celebrated case against the members of the Winnipeg grain exchange, Love, McLaughlin and Lange, was rendered this morning by Chief Justice Howell, Justice Richardson and Justice Phippen, finding being unanimous in upholding Justice Phippen's decision of last May. The reserve case on which judgment was rendered covering two points. Judge Phippen, after setting forth the facts established in the trial, asked the court of appeal to find whether on these stated facts he could have found the defendants guilty of restraint of trade under a certain subsection of the criminal code when he had found them not guilty on other sections. The second question submitted was whether he had properly excluded certain evidence.

Will Prove Charges.
Calgary, Mar. 2.—Reverend, whose scathing criticism of the Calgary city council, which was made public on Sunday, has been made up of the city council, will now go to the west in a special train, stopping at points of importance in route, and organization and social work will be done on the way.

As explained by the organizer on Saturday, Mrs. Edwards, or, indeed, each local branch, the council is made up of an elected executive and the presidents and delegates of all women's societies in the city affiliated with the National Council.
